Thank you for this consultation and I'm confirming that we've no further comments to provide on this work. As indicated in our advice on the original application (SNH email of 18 August 2016), these suction bucket trials will not give rise to any significant impacts on marine mammal species (including EPS) or benthic interests.

Dear Ms Drew,

MARINE (SCOTLAND) ACT 2010, PART 4 MARINE LICENSING

06226 – Aberdeen Offshore Wind Farm Limited – Suction Bucket Trials

The proposal is located approximately 2.4 km offshore from Blackdog, Aberdeenshire, approximately 6km and 8km from the mouths of the Don and Dee respectively. The Don is Scotland's 6th largest river draining a catchment of 1312km squared. Home to a range of freshwater species, which include Salmon, Sea trout, Eels and Lamprey, with its specimen Brown Trout. As a fishery it attracts visiting anglers from the UK and beyond. As such it is of international importance and is managed with the twin aims of conserving these populations and supporting a thriving economic fishery.

Background Information

Atlantic salmon enter the Don each month of the year. From the 11th of February through to the end of October a rod and line fishery operates. This fishery usually catches an average of approximately 1500 salmon a year. This generates significant income for the local economy.

It should be noted that over the last four years the numbers of fish returning to the Don have declined. In 2015 the Don recorded its lowest catch since the early 1970's of 475 salmon.

Comments on Suction Bucket Trials

After reading the application and viewing the map provided the main comment is that due to the techniques proposed and the relatively small footprint of these proposed works, this proposal is unlikely to cause a significant effect on salmon migration.

General Comments

- For the development in general the Don DSFB recognises that this trial development provides an excellent opportunity to gain a greater understanding on the impacts that such marine renewable developments can have on migratory salmonids.
- In view of the importance of salmonids, as highlighted by statute, not only to the ecology of the three rivers which enter the sea close to this development but also the value to the local economy we would request that we are represented on the Advisory and Proposals Committee and also on the pertinent Working Groups so that we can ensure that research relevant to Atlantic salmon and sea trout is conducted alongside the other environmental interests in a positive manner.

The Don DSFB is committed to working with Aberdeen Offshore Wind Farm Limited and the regulatory authorities to ensure that there is no adverse impact on either salmon or sea trout stocks. If you have any queries regarding this response then please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours sincerely

Dear Ms Drew,

06226 – Aberdeen Offshore Wind Farm Limited – Suction Bucket Trials

The proposal is located approximately 2.4 km offshore from Blackdog, Aberdeenshire, approximately 6km and 8km from the mouths of the Don and Dee respectively. The Dee has been designated as a Special Area of Conservation (SAC) under the EC Habitats Directive 92/43 EEC on the Conservation of Natural Habitats and of Wild Flora and Fauna for Atlantic salmon, Freshwater Pearl Mussels and Otters. Under the terms of this legislation Dee DSFB is a competent authority on developments that may impact upon Atlantic salmon.

Background Information

Atlantic salmon enter the Dee each month of the year. From the beginning of February through to the middle of October a rod and line fishery operates. This fishery usually catches an average of approximately 7000 salmon a year. This generates £15 million in current values to the local economy and supports approximately 500 full time equivalent jobs.

River Office, Mill of Dinnet, Dinnet, Aboyne, Aberdeenshire, AB34 5LA

Tel No: 013398 80411 e-mail: info@riverdee.org www.riverdee.org.uk

It should be noted that over the last four years the numbers of fish returning to the Dee have declined. In 2015 the Dee recorded its lowest ever catch of 2600 salmon. The International Council for the Exploration of the Sea and North Atlantic Salmon Conservation Organisation recommend using rod catch as an indicator of stock abundance through the Rod Catch Management Tool. This objective tool has been implemented on the Dee and has indicated that for 2015 the rod catch of salmon failed in each month of the year. It is against this backdrop of failing salmon stocks and the subsequent integrity of the SAC designation that this response has been compiled.

Comments on Suction Bucket Trials

After reading the application and viewing the map provided the main comment is that due to the techniques proposed and the relatively small footprint of these proposed works, this proposal is unlikely to cause a significant effect on salmon migration.

General Comments

- For the development in general the Dee DSFB recognises that this trial development provides an excellent opportunity to gain a greater understanding on the impacts that such marine renewable developments can have on migratory salmonids. We would take this opportunity to remind the developers of their legal responsibilities to Atlantic salmon under the Habitats Directive for the River Dee (Special Area of Conservation under the EC Habitats Directive 92/43 EEC on the Conservation of Natural Habitats and of Wild Flora and Fauna for Atlantic salmon).
- In view of the importance of salmonids, as highlighted by statute, not only to the ecology of the three rivers but also the value to the local economy we would request that we are represented on the Advisory and Proposals Committee and also on the pertinent Working Groups so that we can ensure that research relevant to Atlantic salmon and sea trout is conducted alongside the other environmental interests in a positive manner.

The Dee DSFB is committed to working with Aberdeen Offshore Wind Farm Limited and the regulatory authorities to ensure that there is no adverse impact on either salmon as a qualifying feature of the Special Area of Conservation and also in terms of the fishery in the number of jobs supported by a healthy population of salmon. If you have any queries regarding this response then please do not hesitate to contact me.

Yours sincerely

Edwin Third

If you require any further information please let me know.

Yours sincerely,
